Dear Garden Friend:—

Time moves swiftly, especially in the garden. Tulips are here—before we know it. Irises and Peonies will be blooming. Don't put off the planting of that late summer garden. It's easy to slip up.

Here are a few "Kentucky Bred" Gardens—grouped for your convenience and economy. You can plant them during May and June. They'll keep your garden beautiful and attractive from late summer till frost. Every one is a real bargain. The standard of "Kentucky Bred" quality is there—we know you'll like them.

Order one or a number. The investment is small—the returns in enjoyment are large.

Sincerely yours,

JACOB SCHULZ COMPANY, INC.

G. E. Schulz, President

Plant a "Kentucky Bred" Garden

If you are not acquainted with the superior quality of "Kentucky Bred" flowers, take advantage of these opportunities. The flowers offered are all old favorites but our scientific methods of cultivation and naturally advantageous soil and climatic conditions produce blooms of unusual beauty and hardiness. Plan for more late summer and fall flowers. There is always a corner of some bed or border, some place on the lawn, that a "Kentucky Bred" Garden will transform into a true beauty spot. Glads are unexcelled as cut flowers for the house. Hardy Chrysanthemums will bloom from late August till November. Phlox need no introduction—they are old-fashioned favorites. Roses are loved by all of us. Irises are the aristocrats of spring flowers, but plant them early. Order now, plant now, for a late summer garden of which you will be proud.
